Defend our NDIS rally on Thursday 19th of May 2022

2 days before the Federal election Every Australian Counts (which organised the impetus and design of the NDIS, again came to the fore to make Defend our NDIS, an election issue.

It called a rally outside the "unmarked "Melbourne office of the NDIS, with representatives of Disabled Community groups like Women with Disabilities Australia, MND Australia (Motor Neurone Disease Australia), and Autism Spectrum Australia attending, and speaking. People attending in person and online were protesting the Morrison Government altering the plans of NDIS participants, slashing funding to NDIS plans, and hiring a bunch of

The Federal Government continued claiming the NDIS "unsustainable without cuts to Plans; worse "that people's plans were not value for money."

However, rally speakers pointed out that there seemed to be unlimited money to pay for lawyers representing the NDIA at the AAT; also, that the full implementation of participant plans saved money for the Ministries of Health and Employment.

An estimated 150 people attended the rally in person. People in wheelchairs, on walkers; others waving walking sticks, lined up the length of Collins street between Elizabeth and Williams streets. Red "Defend our NDIS" t -shirts were put on, people chanting about NDIS representatives refusing to meet with them.

In addition to the rally calling on the next government to restore Disabled people planning the NDIS, "we want our people selected as chief executives of the NDIA" ensuring high levels of Governance and Accountability; thus restoring "Nothing About Us Without Us."

Although, rally organisers invited politicians of all parties to attend, only the Greens, the ALP, and Zoe Daniel running as an independent for Goldstein, accepted.

Senator Janet Rice represented Green's Disability spokesman Senator Jordan Steel-John. Senator Rice said the Greens are committed to restoring NDIS funding, supporting people's plans, and ending the discrimination experienced by disabled people in employment and education.

Zoe Daniel said that about 1/3rd of the Goldstein electorate had a disabled family member. She supports restoration of NDIS funding, and the recommendations of the Interim report on the Royal Commission into Violence, Abuse, Neglect and Exploitation of People with Disability published on the 30th of October 2020.

Bill Shorten, the ALP's Shadow Minister for the NDIS, spoke about his fight against "independent assessments," designed to reduce the number of people qualifying for the NDIS, and the Morrison Government's reduction in funds to each NDIS participant's plan. He vowed upon that the ALP winning the election he would legislate to stop the rorts on the NDIS and restore the ability of disabled people to take control of their lives, by choosing and controlling a goal-oriented personal plan.

Thank you, PPV Member Susan Shaab
